Newark's Bearded Bard: This frustrated musician became an eminent poet. By Bruce Johnson.

Were Newark's W. D. Snodgrass to etch his name and title on his office door, there wouldn't be room for a doorknob. His official University of Delaware title is Distinguished Professor of Creative Writing and Contemporary Poetry, a more-than-a-mouthful handle that fits the package.

This 61-year-old poet, born in Wilkinsburg, Pa., lives in Newark's George Read Village near Newark High School. A tenured professor of creative writing with the university's English department, Snodgrass, who is married and has two children, still finds plenty of time to write, often in the company of his 150-pound English mastiff, Buford.

For four decades he has been writing poetry and critical essays that have won the acclaim of critics. His output of poetry includes collections like After Experience, The Fuehrer Bunker, and his most recently published work, Selected Poems, released last year. His talent has been recognized through numerous awards, the most prestigious of which was the Pulitzer in 1960, awarded for his book of poems entitled Heart's Needle. Snodgrass also has garnered the Hudson Review Fellowship in Poetry, a Guggenheim Fellowship and a Ford Foundation grant for study in theater.

Before arriving at UD in 1979, this man of letters had wound his way around the world, with teaching stops at Syracuse and Cornell universities. There were occasional detours, usually when he was rebounding from career-choice cul-de-sacs.

"I was a musician before I was a writer," says Snodgrass, flashing a characteristic grin through a billowing gray beard. "I started out on piano and violin, but I was real bad at those.
I did become a good timpanist, and if there had been any openings with symphony orchestras...that's what I would have done."

There weren't, fortunately, and Snodgrass turned elsewhere for his artistic expression. But before Snodgrass gave up on music as a profession, he tried his hand at conducting. He was learning to conduct when he was drafted into the Navy during World War II.

After the war, Snodgrass enrolled at the University of Iowa to become a playwright--at which he claims he did a lousy job. "It was just something to do," he says. "If I wasn't going to be involved in music, I wanted to be in the arts somewhere."

The high point of his time at Iowa was his discovery of creative writing. "They had some wonderful teachers in the creative writing workshops. I sort of drifted into it. After a couple of years I felt that this was something that I could do." The Pulitzer Prize proved that Snodgrass "can do," and he does it with an eclectic slant.

This musically minded poet has never forsaken his first choice of careers. He is dabbling with his first love when he translates folk music and 12th and 13th century ballads from numerous languages to English. He knows only English, so he relies on the help of friends and prose ponies for his translations. A prose pony, says Snodgrass, is a book which gives both the original and translated versions of a work.

Snodgrass still takes music seriously, but not painfully so. "A friend of mine says that 'music is such a great vice, why turn it into a virtue?'" he says. Smiling, he strums one of his six individually-crafted guitars and adds, "That way it stays fun and doesn't become work. That's what it is to me."

The fountain that currently nourishes Snodgrass's poetic bent has a strange wellspring. An artist friend of his, De Loss McGrath, has created a surrealistic likeness of W. D. Snodgrass-- one that appears in many of McGrath's works. McGrath paintings that include "W.D." images are owned by collectors the world over, including the queen of Denmark.

"McGrath started doing paintings based on works of mine," says Snodgrass. "Then he started doing these narrative paintings that have this figure W.D. in them. Then I started doing poems based on his paintings. They are really kooky, wild, delicious paintings. I've found myself being more productive than I've ever been.

Though others are, Snodgrass is not convinced that he's good at what he does. "You never know. The only way to know is if your stuff is still around 300 years later. By then I'm not going to be around. Still, I won't be around to find out if I was bad, either."

1893 – Eminent and Representative Men Virginia and the District of Columbia of the Nineteenth Century (Ainsworth R. Spofford; Brant & Fuller, Madison, Wisconsin; 1893)
pages 225-8:

James Lawson Norris, patent attorney, comes of an old and honorable English family dating back to Sir John Norris, who was knighted on the field of Hastings. His ancestors emigrated to this country with Cecil Calvert, and settled in St. Mary's county, Md. His grandfather, Barnett T. Norris, who was born in St. Mary's county, Md., removed in 1790 to the vicinity of Waterford, Loudoun county, Va., and, after settling on a farm, married Miss Barbara Ordner of Frederick county, Md. Here he reared a family of sixteen children. Three of his sons sacrificed their lives in the military service of the country and several died in early childhood. The remainder were in the course of years scattered in different parts of the country, where they have proved themselves successful in their vocations and worthy members of society.

The youngest of this large family was Hon. John Edmund Norris, the father of the subject of this sketch, a lawyer of distinction and ability, and a politician of prominence. He was born in Loudoun county, Va., October 23, 1816, and educated at Dickinson college, Carlisle, Penn., where he married Eliza Tidings Phillips, daughter of John Phillips, Esq., who was one of the earliest trustees of Dickinson college, when it came into the hands of the Methodists, with which denomination both he and his estimable wife, Mary Magdalene Phillips, were identified, and to it devoutly attached. Mary Magdalene Phillips was a daughter of Jacob Harmon, who resided near Gettysburg, Penn., and who held many high offices of trust and honor in that state. Mrs. John Edmund Norris was one of their family of six children, a family connected by blood and affinity with many of the most noted families in the country, with Robert Morris, one of the signers of the declaration of independence, with Hon. George Rex of Ohio, associate justice of the supreme court of the state, and finally its chief justice, and many others.

James Lawson Norris is the third son and fourth child of his parents, and was born in Washington, D. C., October 15, 1846. He attended Everett institute, then a noted school of the city, under Prof. E. W. Farley, after which he went to Dickinson college, Carlisle, Penn., where he completed his education. While in college he read law with the well-known Judge Graham, and subsequently with his own father, the Hon. John Edmund Norris, in Washington. During his college life Mr. Norris became a member of the Belles Lettres society and of the Zeta chapter of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity, and in after years he, in connection with Mr. Herman Johnson of Carlisle, Penn., and Mr. William Busey, a prominent lawyer of Baltimore, Md., founded the Alpha chapter of the same fraternity at Columbia college in the District of Columbia, a chapter which is now one of the most flourishing in the whole fraternity.

After leaving college he entered the United States patent office, and was placed upon the examining corps in the classes of mechanical engineering, and of electricity and philosophical instruments, serving under Chief Examiner Gen. Albin Schoepf and Chief Examiner William B. Taylor. At that time these two classes comprised orders of inventions that are now presided over by ten or a dozen chief examiners. The term of service of Mr. Norris in the patent office gave him a knowledge and familiarity with the entire business of the department, which was invaluable to him in after life. While on the examining corps Mr. Norris served under Patent Commissioners Hon. T. C. Theaker, Hon. Elisha Foote, and Hon. S. S. Fisher.

Determining now to enter upon the profession of patent law practice, he tendered his resignation to Commissioner S. S. Fisher and left the public service in 1869 to assume the carving out of his own future, and to take the chances of success in the ever-increasing competition of the patent practice. He established his offices in the Brereton building at the corner of F and 7th streets, N.W., Washington, D.C., where he soon acquired a large practice. In 1879, his business had attained such proportions that his offices could no longer accommodate it, when he purchased the property on the corner of F and 5th streets, N.W., opposite the government pension building, and erected thereon, in 1880, the large and commodious building that bears his name. The offices in this building are among the most complete in their plans and appointments for the purpose in the city of Washington, and contain an extensive library, collected by its owner through many years.

Besides giving close attention to his large private business, Mr. Norris has found time for outside matters of the most public spirited and varied kind. He is one of the board of managers of Oak Hill cemetery, director in the Children's hospital, director and vice-president of the National bank of Washington, having on this account resigned as a director in the National Bank of the Republic, where he had served for years. He is likewise a director in the Franklin Insurance company, Mutual Protection Insurance company, and connected with many other financial and charitable institutions. He is also a member of Pentalpha lodge of Masons, Mt. Vernon Royal Arch chapter, and a Knight Templar, being a life member of Columbia commandery.

On the death of his father in 1857, who for many years had been president of the Jackson Democratic association of the district (next to Tammany, the oldest political organization existing in the United States), he was unanimously elected to fill that high position, and has been each succeeding year re-elected, holding the position at the present time.

On the election of Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Hendricks in 1884, he was made a member of the general inaugural committee, consisting of fifty citizens, and by this committee was elected a member of the executive committee and chairman of the fire works committee, on which occasion the press announced the display of pyrotechnics to have far exceeded anything of the kind ever before witnessed in this country. During the campaign of Cleveland and Thurman in 1888, he was selected by the national democratic committee as its advisory committeeman for the District of Columbia. Mr. Norris was elected by the joint democratic caucus of the senate and of the house of representatives, as the "representative for the District of Columbia on the democratic congressional committee, and as its treasurer during the sessions of the 50th, 51st and 52nd congresses. In March, 1892, he was elected a delegate to the national democratic convention at Chicago, which nominated Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Stevenson, he voting for both nominees. Mr. Norris is the member of the democratic national committee for the District of Columbia. Under the direction of the democratic national committee, Mr. Norris, as national committeeman, organized the advisory committee of the democratic national committee for the District of Columbia, and upon his nomination the Hon. Martin F. Morris was elected chairman, Mr. Norris being made chairman ex-officio.

In 1891 he was selected, by the justices of the supreme court of the District of Columbia, as one of the three commissioners to appraise the lands condemned by the government for the formation of the National Rock Creek park, Mr. Norris being made chairman. This commission determined the value of nearly 2,000 acres of land, under the titles of more than one hundred claimants. How well and justly this work was done, can be judged from the fact that although their findings were vigorously assailed by some of the parties in interest, not one was reversed, but the whole report approved by the court and by President Harrison, under the law providing for the establishment of the national park.

In September, 1867, Mr. Norris was married to Miss Annie Virginia Robinson, the daughter of Col. Israel Robinson, of Martinsburg, W. Va., whose ancestors were among the earlier settlers of that section, owning large estates. Col. Robinson was a prominent lawyer, and also edited most ably the Virginia Republican down to the beginning of the Civil war. He was one of the electors for the state of Virginia in the Pierce, Buchanan and Douglas campaigns. He represented Berkeley county in the state legislature for several terms prior to the Civil war, and after the declaration of war represented Berkeley county, Va., in the legislature and was a member of the Confederate congress, at Richmond, Va., to the time of his death in October, 1863. He was also a prominent Mason and Odd Fellow.

The mother of Mrs. Norris was Miss Catherine Elizabeth Snodgrass, daughter of Col. Robt. V. Snodgrass, a wealthy planter of Berkeley county, Va., whose father was an officer in the Revolutionary war. Mrs. Norris is by heredity and education a Christian lady of refinement and hospitality, without affectation or ostentation, and possesses rare qualities of mind and manner. The union of Mr. and Mrs. Norris cemented the affection which from childhood they had evinced for each other.

The outlines of a man's occupations and achievements do not always present the finer and more essential qualities of his nature, nor do they exhibit him in the most attractive and interesting features of his character. To be known as he truly is, Mr. Norris must be known in the private circle of his own family and in the close neighborhood of his daily life. Here he is seen as a man of most humane and benignant instincts, touched to the heart by the misfortunes of others, in manner genial and warm-hearted, in character straightforward and generous, and in all the relations of life fulfilling his duties as a man and a Christian. In his religious faith Mr. Norris is a Methodist, which denomination he joined in early life, but for the past twenty-five years he has been identified with the First Presbyterian church, Washington, D. C., of which his wife and two of their daughters are devoted members, and of which church the Rev. Bryon Sunderland, D. D., is pastor.

Mr. and Mrs. Norris have been blessed with seven children, of whom five are now living, their names being Edith, Grace James, Emma Virginia, James Lawson, and Rastus Ransom. Their two eldest children, Addie and Maud, died in infancy and were buried in Oak Hill cemetery, in which beautiful city of the dead peacefully rest the remains of their grandfather, John Edmund Norris; their grandmother, Eliza Tidings Norris; their grandmother, Catharine Elizabeth Robinson; their great-grandfather, John Phillips; their great-grandmother, Mary Magdalene Phillips, and many other relatives; their grandfather, Col. Israel Robinson, being buried in Hollywood cemetery, Richmond, Va.

6 Mar 1936 – The Gazette (Montreal, Canada) (Newspaper.com), Friday, 6 Mar 1936:

A wedding of interest took place in Washington, D.C., on Saturday, February 22, when Miss Helen Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Walker, became the bride of Russell Leigh Snodgrass, of Washington, son of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Snodgrass, of Young's Cove, N.S. [= Nova Scotia, Canada]. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin, severely plain, after an Empire model fashioned with long fitted sleeves, high neckline, and a long train. Her tulle veil was simply arranged and held in place by clusters of orange blossoms at either side. She carried a shower bouquet of Belmont gardenias and lilies of the valley. Miss Evelyn Walker was her sister's maid of honor and only attendant. Mr. Jack Koehler, of Baltimore, was best man for Mr. Snodgrass, and the ushers were Mr. Allanson Wilcox, Mr. Richard Quay, Mr. Francis Soughton Walker, brother of the bride, and Mr. Campbell Garney of New York, formerly of Fredericton, N.B. [= New Brunswick, Canada]. Later Mr. and Mrs. Snodgrass left for Mexico City, where they will spend a month before returning to Washington, where they will be at home after April 1. The bride attended Miss Boulogny's School at Warrenton, Va., and George Washington University. She was presented in Washington a few seasons ago. Mr. Snodgrass graduated from University of New Brunswick, Dalhousie Law School, and Harvard Law School. He is now assistant general counsel of the United States Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

17 Jul 1972 – Tallahassee Democrat (Tallahassee, Florida), Monday, 17 Jul 1972:

Bainbridge, Ga.—A 27-year-old Colquitt nurse, Linda Snodgrass, who was injured in a four-car collision here Friday night, died Sunday in Phoebe Putnam Hospital in Albany, Ga. She is survived by her husband, Walter Snodgrass, of Colquitt, and two children, aged five and seven. ... According to police reports, Mrs. Snodgrass and Police Officers John Thomas and James McDowell were attempting to start a stalled car belonging to another nurse, Mrs. Martha Jones of Colquitt. Both nurses had finished their shifts at Bainbridge Memorial Hospital and were en route to Colquitt when Mrs. Jones’s vehicle stalled on the bypass near the U.S. 27-84 bypass in West Bainbridge.

A car driven by Oliver Parish, 33, of Route 3, Bainbridge, veered off the highway and crashed into the rear of the parked Snodgrass car, pushing it forward into the other two cars. Mrs. Snodgrass and Patrolman Thomas were pinned between the police car and the stalled vehicle. Both received critical leg injuries. Several warrants have been issued for Parrish, and he is being held in the Decatur County jail.

Sep 1923 – Chattanooga Times (Chattanooga, Tennessee), Sep 1923:

"Snodgrass hill, the scene of the last desperate stand of the Federal army, under General Thomas, on Sunday afternoon, September 20, 1863, took its name from the Snodgrass family who owned the property and lived there at the time, and whose house, marked with an iron plate, still stands. George Washington Snodgrass, a native of Virginia, was the head of the family. He was about 60 years of age at the time of the battle, and was, of course, too old for military duty. He was living with his third wife. He had two grown up sons, one of whom, Charles Snodgrass, was a Confederate soldier and was in the battle. The other son, John, was a cripple, and was at home. The other children at home were Mary, 16; Virginia, 12; Georgia Ann, 10; William R., 8; Julia Kittie, 6; and Martha Ellen, 4.

John Richard Mullis (4 Jan 1860-29 Jan 1907), son of William Morgan Mullis & Mary Ann Osborn, married Martha Ellen Snodgrass. William Morgan Mullis and his brother Wyley bought a land lot 1/4 Northwest of the Snodgrass house.

George Washington Snodgrass was born and raised in Virginia. He was indentured until he was 21 years of age to Adam Lanius, from whom he learned the carpentry trade. Later he also worked as a mechanic. He married Elizabeth Lanius, born 1814, the dau. of Adam Lanius, in Botetourt Co., Virginia, 22 Mar 1835. Their known children were Charles L., born 1835, & John W., born 1838, both in Virginia. Charles later served as a Confederate soldier. After the war he migrated to Indiana, where he lived out the remainder of his life. John W. was crippled and did not serve in the military. John married Ellen ___, born 1836 in North Carolina. She had two children, Litecion and Tennessee Millsap by a previous marriage. She and John W. had one child, Elizabeth, born 1870.

After George Washington's first wife's death, he moved to Chattanooga, Tennessee, where he married Amanda Munn. Their only child was Mary Jane, born 1843 in Tennessee and died 1914. She married J. W. Merciers 15 Apr 1882.

George Washington's third marriage was to Elizabeth Jackson from Tennessee, born 23 Dec 1823, d. 4 May 1895. Approximately 1850 they moved to Walker Co., Georgia. George purchased the farm now known as the Snodgrass house, from Samuel Igou on 8 Sep 1855. The parcel of land contained approximately 160 acres. He had lived on the land for 7 years prior to the time of the purchase.

The third marriage produced 6 more children: Eunice Virginia, b. 15 Oct 1851, d. 30 May 1916, married Sam Osborne; Georgia Ann, b. 1853, d. 21 Apr 1922, married Jim Murdock; William Robert, b. 1855, d. ??, married Josie Tyler; Catherine Julia "Kitty," born 3 Feb 1857, d. 8 May 1938, married Green Reed; Martha Ellen, b. 23 Jan 1859, d. 2 Oct 1917, married John Richard Mullis; Rhody, b. 15 Oct 1863, d. 28 Sep 1926, married first Sam Reed and second a Mr. Holmes.

George Washington Snodgrass was 62 years of age at the time of the Civil War, and he was naturally too old to serve. George's family remembered the hardship of the war and was contacted at a later date to give an account of the happenings. Mary Jane and Cathrine Julia did so, and the following are excerpts from their writings. Kitty was 6 years old at the time of the battle in 19 Sep 1863. Mary Jane was 19.

The first Federal soldiers seen by the family were foragers, who first laid tribute upon their sweet potatoes and later on anything else they could find. Kitty remembered the roar of the battle on Friday. Her father refused to leave his home. However, by Saturday afternoon, the bullets began falling around their house and going through the roof, and her father gave the word to leave. They went Northwest from their house and camped in the woods for eight days and nights. There were a number of families at the camp, and they were all practically without food. They fed on field peas, which they roasted, and sweet potatoes, and due to dry weather they suffered much from the lack of water. They made bread with water they got from a hog waller [=wallow], and it made the bread look like it was made with mud.

The Snodgrass house was used as a hospital during and immediately after the battle. When the wounded had finally been removed, nothing remained but broken and blood-stained furniture. It was clear that for the time, they must seek other quarters. Their father took them to Ellis Springs near Ringgold, Georgia, where they camped for some time. The children carried vivid impressions of the battle scenes, and later told of seeing dead men and dead horses yet unburied along the roadside.

Along with other families within the battle area, they suffered the confusion in the wake of war. A small source of income was selling bullets and relics from the battle scene to persons in Chattanooga.

George Washington Snodgrass and his third wife, Elizabeth, are buried at Chickamauga Cemetery.

(no date) – (from an unknown source)

Perhaps the most outstanding name connected with the Battle of Chickamauga is that of Snodgrass. Snodgrass Hill was the site of General Thomas's courageous stand on Sunday afternoon, September 20, 1863. The name, "Rock of Chickamauga," was applied to Thomas for his gallant stand there during the closing moments of battle.

A. Location:

The Snodgrass cabin is approximately one mile and a half southwest of the Park headquarters situated on a small knoll now named Snodgrass Hill. The house is situated on Land Lot Number 134, Walker Co., Georgia.

B. Landownership

Samuel Igon sold Lot Number 134 to George Washington Snodgrass on September 8, 1855. The parcel of land contained approximately 160 acres. George W. Snodgrass and family owned and farmed the land at the time of the Battle of Chickamauga.

G. W. Snodgrass willed the property to his wife Elizabeth, November 25, 1886. Elizabeth deeded the land to S. T. Osborn, her son-in-law, June 19, 1890. Samuel T. Osborn sold the same lot to the United States government in December 1891, after a petition to condemn his land was brought forward October 1891. Osborn was paid the sum of $6,720.

C. Family History

George Snodgrass was born and raised in Virginia. He moved to Chattanooga and then to Georgia where he purchased the farm in 1855. However, he had been living on the land for some seven years prior to this time. At the time of the battle, George was about 60 years old and married to his third wife, Elizabeth Kingston. The eight Snodgrass children at the time of the battle were: Charles (a Confederate soldier and participant in the battle), John (crippled), Mary (16), Virginia (12), Georgia Ann (10), William R. (8), Julia Kittie (6), and Martha Ellen (4).

In Virginia, George was a bound boy until 21 years of age. He married the dau., Elizabeth Lawnes, of the man to whom he was bound. His second wife was Amanda Munn, and the mother of Mary Jane. He was a mechanic, a carpenter by trade and worked by the day until he was able to pay for the farm.

D. Physical Appearance of the House

The log house, which today is located on park property, is a portion of the original structure in which the Snodgrass family lived during the battle. The original structure was built in 1848.

"The Snodgrass log buildings were located on the northern slope and about 30 or 40 yards back from the crest. The ridge was covered (except the Snodgrass field east and north of the buildings) with timber, and on the southern slope was a growth of underbrush..." Attached to the Snodgrass house was a spare shed, kitchen, and smoke house. Other buildings included servants' quarters, barn (stable, see photo in 23rd Reunion, Society of the Army of the Cumberland, p. 112) and granaries.

The log house itself measured about 20'4" x 18'2" with a front door opening on to a gravel walk. A chimney was on the east side of the house and was made up of cribwork smaller than those logs forming the house. The door in the back of the house opened into a spare shed. Connected to and directly behind the shed was a kitchen measuring 10' x 12' and to its rear a smokehouse measuring 8' x 10'.

The gravel path was about 30 feet long and ended at a rough picket gate. The picket gate was a portion of the split oak rail fence which surrounded the Snodgrass house. The fence measured 100' x 160'.

The natural setting of the area included a woodland directly in back of the fence. Within the fence were two cedar trees. To the east of the house was a meadow. South of the house was a garden and to the west of it was an apple and peach orchard.

E. Battle Events

Following Longstreet's breakthrough at the Brotherton House, the Union troops began to fall back. As they did so the Union line broke into two sections, of which one group went with General Rosecrans and withdrew into Chattanooga. The second group was to come under the command of General Thomas on Snodgrass Hill. Among those Union troops were Brannan's Division, Steedman's Division, and fragments of Negley's, Woods, and Van Cleve's Divisions. The Union troops held the hill during the afternoon and at dusk began the withdrawal into Roseville.

The house was used as a hospital during the battle, as were the Brotherton and Kelly houses. Brigadier-General William Preston, CSA, reported: "Among the wounded at Snodgrass's house, where a hospital had been established by the enemy, were many prisoners, some of whom were from Crittenden's Corps..." The Snodgrasses could have attested to the fact that their house was used as a hospital, also, for when they returned after the battle, their home was a "gory shambles" with broken and bloodstained furniture, and filled with wounded men.

The first Federal soldiers seen by the Snodgrass family had been foragers in search of food. Although sounds of battle were heard on Friday, George W. Snodgrass refused to leave his home. By 3:00 p.m. on the 19th the Snodgrasses were forced to leave their home, as bullets began falling around their home and through the roof. That same Saturday afternoon Mary Jane had been sent to the William Mullis farm for a wagon. When she returned she found 63 men, women, and children there. At this time all left to camp in the woods.

As the battle drew to a close on Sunday evening, the campers heard a band playing a Southern battle song. Everyone rejoiced, yet they were unable to return soon to their homes, for they were filled with wounded. The Snodgrass family found it necessary to move to Elis Springs near Ringgold, where they remained until the close of the war.

8) Snodgrass Hill. It was here that Gen. George H. Thomas became the "Rock of Chickamauga." When Longstreet's attack struck the Union center, the Federal troops there fell back to this hill, where Thomas organized them into a determined defending force. The log cabin here marks the site of the 1863 home of the Snodgrass family.

(picture caption) The Snodgrass house (taken about 1890). This is how it looked in 1863 when Thomas made it famous with his stubborn defense.

Map 10. Afternoon of September 20 <1863>. After Longstreet's breakthrough, Brannan formed a line of his own and other unit fragments, facing south on so-called Horseshoe Ridge. As the men built breastworks of rocks and fence rails, Thomas stood "like a rock" on _Snodgrass Hill_ close to the center of this line, and took personal charge. To his left was a half-mile gap between his flank and the right of Reynolds' division, Turchin's brigade. Longstreet never perceived this weakness, but rearranged his divisions for an attack around the Federal right.

Kereshaw opened the assault at 1 p.m. He was beaten off, but continued to press the attack all afternoon. Then Longstreet threw Johnson and Hindman's divisions against Brannan's right. Before Johnson could close, Steedman arrived to block him. ON his march from McAfee's Church he had diverged from the Lafayette Road to avoid artillery fire, and had passed through Mullis's farm. He struck Johnson head-on, and this fight continued until dark, with Johnson definitely repulsed.

Longstreet, having failed in flank attacks, now brought up Preston's fresh division against Thomas' center. The fighting was vicious and bloody, but artillery and their breastworks enabled the Federals to stand fast.

Bragg finally got Polk moving at 5 p.m. Liddell reached the LaFayette Road with two brigades but was thrown back by Turchins' audacious counterattack.

At 5:30 p.m. Thomas began to withdraw. Three regiments covering the movement from Horseshoe Ridge were sacrificed but the rest of Thomas' force retreated safely under cover of darkness to Rossville. Bragg did not pursue.

Joel Kelly, ca. 1775-ca. 1862 (Paul Smith--1984)

The following is from Alexander Clark Kelley's story, which was loaned to author by Louise Davis Brock in 1980:

The Snodgrass Hill, the scene of the last desperate stand of the Federal Army under General Thomas, on Sunday afternoon 20 Sep 1864 took its name from the Snodgrass family who owned the property and lived there at the time, and whose house, marked with an iron plate, still stands. George Washington Snodgrass, a native of Virginia, was head of the family. He was 60 years old at the time of the battle and was, of course, too old for military duty. He was living with his third wife. He had two grown sons, one of whom, Charlie Snodgrass, was a Confederate soldier and was in the battle. The other son, John, was a cripple and was at home. The other children at home were Mary (16), Virginia (12), Georgia Ann (10), William R. (8), Julia Kittie (6), and Mary Ellen (4). The only one of these living now is Julia Kittie, who married D. Green Reed in 1879 and who now lives with her husband and family near Parker's gap in Hamilton Co., TN. Mrs. Reed is an active, energetic, and intelligent lady. She was only 6 years old at the time of the battle, but her recollections are most clear and vivid. When asked recently to tell something of the battle, she graciously did so and talked most interestingly of her experiences during the battle and afterward.

The first Federal soldiers seen by her and her family were foragers, who first laid tribute upon their sweet potatoes and later on anything else they could find, including eatables and livestock. She remembers the roar of the battle on Friday when Wilder at Alexander's bridge and Mity at Reed's Bridge were disputing the crossing of the Confederates. Her father refused at that time to leave the house, and the next morning they heard the increasing thunder of the conflict, which began first at Jay's Mill and then spread southward toward Lee and Gordon's Hill, until from across the whole five miles front rose the infernal din of battle.

About 3 o'clock on Sunday afternoon the 19th bullets began falling around their house and going through the roof, and their father gave word to retreat. They went northwest from their house up a ravine and camped in the woods. As the battle surged nearer, the missiles began to fall about them, compelling them to retreat further into the wood. Here they made camp and remained for eight days and nights. The families represented at this camp were the Snodgrasses, Kelleys, McDonalds, Brocks, and Mullises.

John McDonald was taken prisoner 19 Sep 1863 by General Wilder and sent off to General Rosecare. He was required to serve as a guide. Being an old man of 60 years of age, he soon died of exposure in 1864. He was Amanda McDonald's father.

At the opening of the battle, a two-room house stood on this site, in which lived John McDonald and his family. John McDonald and his wife, Pricilla Belle McDonald, were natives of Jefferson Co., TN. They lived at this place 17 years before the battle. The children living at the time were William C., Amanda L., and Charles. All are now dead.

The Kelley house and field are famous spots on the battlefield. The first day of fighting on the left was some distance east of the field. During that night General Thomas in command here fell back to a line just inside the edge of the wood on the east side of the field and during the night substantial breastworks logs, rails, etc. were thrown up. During the second day this line was the scene of some of the most terrific fighting of modern times.

History of Baltimore City and County, from the Earliest Period to the Present Day (John Thomas Scharf; L. H. Everts, 1881, Baltimore)
page 651: Literature and Literary Men

Dr. J. E. Snodgrass combined literature with the practice of medicine. He was connected with various magazines, and was the editor of one of them. His "Ode to My Spring Lancet," published in 1837, shows his pride in both professions. At his death, which took place in Virginia in 1880, he left a bundle of unpublished letters from Edgar A. Poe. Among these was a note from a printer named Walker, which showed that Poe had sent for Snodgrass in his distress a few days before his death. It appears thus that Poe had been able to communicate the fact that he was ill, and to send for his friend, and this goes far to contradict the received stories of his death. He was already suffering with the brain disease that carried him off at a time that it was supposed to be intoxication.

pages 774-775:

Henry Nicholas Bankard, who has largely contributed towards building up the suburban portion of the city, was born in the city of Baltimore, Md., on the 23d of December, 1834. He is the son of Nicholas Dill and Mary Ann (Snodgrass) Bankard, and the grandson of Peter and Catherine (Dill) Bankard. His grandfather on the paternal side was of German descent. His mother was the daughter of William and Catherine (Hart) Snodgrass, and of Irish parentage. The ancient name of the Snodgrass family was Snuggrass, but the branch of the family residing in Ohio, with a regard for euphony, had it changed to Snodgrass.

Mr. Bankard's academic advantages were comparatively few considering his accomplishments. He is a self-made and self-educated man and his achievements strongly attested the superiority of the latter mode of training. His father was one of the best known master-builders in Baltimore, and desiring his son to follow his occupation, as he had early developed fine mechanical talents, imparted to young Bankard the thorough knowledge of an artisan. Always active, energetic and quick, he became master of all the details of a builder and though quite a youth he was equal in mechanical execution and finish to the best workman. During his employment with his father he also acquired a thorough knowledge of the value of real estate in every part of Baltimore City and county, which subsequently gave him such advantage in the conduct of his business as a real estate broker. Mr. Bankard's knowledge of property and the successful conduct of several large real estate negotiations determined him to adopt that profession. In 1856, Mr. Bankard opened a real estate office at his present offices, No. 5 St. Paul Street, and at once succeeded in gathering about him a number of customers of substantial real estate owners. These have annually increased, and his judgment and integrity, still holding his old customers and acquiring new, has given him a safe, solid business of proportions not exceeded by other leading brokers and rarely equaled. His experience of twenty-five years in the business has made him an authority in his profession, upon which his customers rely without further inquiry. With quick decision, familiarity with all forms of conveyance, he conducts his business most satisfactorily to those who employ him. In 1869, Henry connected with himself a very clever young lawyer, Mr. Munson, but the partnership was dissolved by the death of the latter.

Mr. Bankard's political opinions were formed after close reading, observations, and reflection, quite independently of all local influences, when he became a man, and are conscientiously entertained. At a time when it was dangerous to a gentleman's social position in Maryland to entertain and express opinions favorable to the emancipation of slaves in the State, Mr. Bankard not only entertained these sentiments, but fearlessly expressed them. More than that, yielding to the personal solicitations of his friend, the Hon. Henry Winter Davis, he became a candidate for the Legislature on the first Emancipation ticket ever voted for in Maryland and polled over 600 votes. At a later period, when the alarm of civil strife sounded from the guns of the gallant Anderson in defense of Ft. Sumter, and the city of Baltimore was under the temporary control of men inimical to the Union, when men who have since made political capital on loud boasts of loyalty were so intimidated that they even hauled down the nation's flag, the "red, white and blue" floated from no other flag staff than that of Mr. Bankard's. So pronounced was his loyalty and so conspicuous his work in cheering up and infusing some of his own courage into the hesitating and doubting in behalf of the Union he loved so well that his residence in Baltimore County was only protected from the Confederate torch by the strategy of a tenant, a woman, who told the mob that she "was as good a rebel as any of them."

Later, when the invading hordes of the enemy threatened Baltimore, Mr. Bankard shouldered a musket and served in the memorable campaign of "seven days on Brown's Hill" and materially aided the Union officers in the works of entrenchment and defense.

In 1874, Henry was unanimously selected by the Republican party of his ward as a candidate for the First Branch of the City Council, and although counted out by the party holding the machinery of elections in Baltimore, he was believed to have been fairly elected and entitled to the seat. He has been a member of the Mechanics Lodge of Odd-Fellows for twenty years and a member of the Monumental Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons. He has taken an active interest in all works of public improvement, philanthropy, and charity and has been and yet is a helping friend of the deserving poor.

Mr. Bankard has held many prominent positions of honor and trust. He was secretary and director of the Newington Building Association of Baltimore from its origin until its successful close of business. For the past ten years he has held the same responsible position in the Newington Land and Loan Co. of Baltimore, distributing its entire earnings, aggregating nearly a million dollars, to the entire satisfaction of all concerned. He was installed treasurer of the Chesapeake Council, No. 367, Royal Arcanum on Jan. 12, 1879, and the regent of the same on the 8th of January, 1880, and past regent and trustee of the same council on the 13th of January, 1881, and has since been elected a member of the Grand Council of the Royal Arcanum of the State of Maryland, and one of its trustees. On the 5th of November, 1880, he was elected a member of "The Maryland Historical Society," which is composed of the most learned men of the State. He was a member of the grand jury of City of Baltimore at the September term of the Criminal Court, 1880, and was a member of the committee of the grand inquest charged with the important duty of reporting to the court the condition of the prisoners and the jail in which they were confined.

In 1867, his health being impaired, in company with the Rev. Dr. Backus and his estimable wife, and the Rev. Dr. Sewell, of Baltimore, he visited and spent a portion of the winter on the island of Cuba, and returning home in the spring reinvigorated in body and mind, he engaged actively in business.

Mr. Bankard's religious proclivities have a partiality for the Methodist Church, influenced largely by the teachings of an eminently pious mother; but his opinions on denominations are exceedingly liberal, believing that every church or denomination is necessary to the propagation of religious truth.

While Mr. Bankard is a practical, systematic business man, he is affectionate and warm-hearted, and has a large circle of warm and cultivated friends. His manners are genial and kind, and his nature quick, active, and energetic. He married Caroline A. Horn, and has had ten children, six daughters and four sons. One of their sons, George Louis, died in 1877. The names of his surviving children are Mary Regina, Clara Virginia, Edgar Howard, Caroline Lincoln, Henry Nicholas, Florence Reppert, Charles Sumner, Margaret Snodgrass and Elizabeth Dill.

Mr. Bankard is the author of a number of articles on the public questions of the day,--reform in the local administration of the city government, opposition to the system of irredeemable ground rents, inequality of taxation, and other practical matters affecting the public welfare. He writes in a terse but lucid and bold, vigorous style. The productions of his pen attract attention and discussion from the thoughtful. He is now in the very prime of life, firmly established in a large and profitable business, relieved by the association and attention to the education of his interesting family, and respected by the public for his strict integrity and many excellent traits of social character.

18 Oct 1964 – Baltimore News American (Baltimore, Maryland), 18 Oct 1964:
Poe's Death Remains City's Top Mystery.

So vividly alive remain the golden, melodious words that flowed from the pen of Edgar Allan Poe that it seems incredible that 115 years have elapsed since his genius was muted forever by his strange and untimely death 7 Oct 1849. The story life and tragic death of Poe, regarded at least by many English and French literati as the greatest of American poets, are linked intimately with Baltimore, although he was born in Boston in 1809. Most Baltimoreans are familiar with the sad details of his poverty and ill health during his younger manhood in this city while he industriously wrote poems, short stories, and his only drama in hopes of gaining the recognition that was slow in coming. But the cause of his death, at age 40, to this day remains perhaps the most celebrated unsolved mystery in the city's history.

What is known is that about 27 Sep 1849, Poe left Richmond, where he had lived for a time, by steamer for Baltimore, on his way to Philadelphia. By this time he was enjoying fame and relative prosperity. It is not known for certain whether he reached Philadelphia, although there is an unverified tradition that he visited there and drank with friends. The next known fact is that on 3 Oct, an election day, Poe was found semi-conscious outside a Baltimore 4th Ward polling place near a cheap tavern in East Lombard St. This led to an assumption that he may have been given drugged liquor and confined, or "cooped," so that he could be dragged by political bullies to a succession of polling places to be voted as a "repeater." This was common practice in the turbulent elections of the period.

The man who found the dying Poe was Joseph W. Walker, a newspaper printer. He called Dr. J. E. Snodgrass, a friend of Poe, who had the poet taken to Washington Medical College Hospital, now Church Home and Hospital. Poe lived until the early morning of 7 Oct. He was unconscious much of the time and was helpless to explain his condition. There was no record of a drunken condition, but an intimation he may have suffered from a brain congestion or tumor.

Poe's remains lie buried in Westminster Churchyard, 500 block West Fayette St., under a modest monument that has been visited by myriads of tourists and others over the years. Something happened to each of four monuments prepared to honor his memory. One of them caused an event which received wide notoriety. It was a bronze figure made by the famed sculptor, Sr. Moses Ezekiel, presented to the city by the Poe Memorial Association and placed in Wyman Park in 1921. But on the front of the pedestal was a misquotation from "The Raven." It read: "Dreaming dreams no mortals ever dared to dream before." The "s" on "mortals" was superfluous, although a wide controversy raged over the point. So in 1930 a local character named Edmond Fontaine went out to the park and chopped off the offending "s." The civic sense of humor saved him from punishment.

As for the demise of the poet, it was described in a brochure by the Literature Department of the Enoch Pratt Free Library as follows: The "fever called 'Living' is conquered at last," and a life marred by fantastic misunderstandings and misfortunes was ended in a mystery as strange as any of Poe's own tale.

24 Jun 2014 – South Jersey Times (Mullica Hill, New Jersey), June 24, 2014:

Helen S. Brown passed away on May 19, 2014 with her family in attendance. Helen was born on September 1, 1928 in Pitman, New Jersey to James and Jane Snodgrass. She was the 4th of 5 children. Brothers: James, Robert, and Harrison (all deceased) and sister, Janet Hughes (surviving).

Helen graduated from Hahnemann School of Nursing in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, in 1949. On August 25, 1951, Helen married Robert Brown from Frackville, Pennsylvania. They began their life journey together adding three daughters to their family. Helen worked full time to allow Bob to continue and complete medical school. Following Bob's graduation, Helen became a Navy wife and raised their three daughters, often times solo when the Navy called Bob away. The Navy provided many adventures, often in two different households. After retiring from the Navy in 1973, Bob and Helen settled in Thousand Oaks, California. They settled into a busy life of making friends and enjoying life without moves. Together they traveled the country as well as the world. These trips provided many great memories. Helen became active in the community as a quilter and a member of the St. Patrick's Episcopal Church.

Helen is survived by her husband of 63 years, Robert A. Brown, M.D., and their three daughters and their families: Deborah Parmelee (Brian), children Rhiannon, Karen and Tyler; Melissa Bowden (Jeff), child Craig (Melissa); and Diana Smith, children Cory, Eric and Ryan.

To celebrate Helen's life and honor her legacy a memorial service will be held on Saturday, June 28, at 10 a.m. at The Episcopal Church of the Good Shepherd, 315 Highland Terrace, Pitman, New Jersey, where Helen was baptized and married. She will be interred at the family gravesite in Hillcrest Memorial Park Cemetery. In lieu of flowers please make contributions to St. Patrick's Episcopal Church, 1 Church Road, Thousand Oaks, CA 91362 or the Navy Marine Corps Relief Society (NMRS.org-Donate) 875 N. COLE COLLECTION

Portion of letter written by Winfield C. Snodgrass, 610 Central Ave., Plainsfield, New Jersey, 15 Jul 1904, to Mrs. Elizabeth Snodgrass Saunders of Decatur, Alabama.

I remember to have asked my father many years ago if the Snodgrasses of Martinsburg, West Virginia, were relatives of ours & he replied in the affirmative, but that the connection was distant. My father also said that the late Judge Snodgrass of Parkersburg, West Virginia, was a distant relative of ours. I cannot remember his first name, but I recall that his father's name was John, with a middle letter which I think was "F". He was an eminent lawyer. I think at one time a member of the Virginia Legislature. Some of the family names within my acquaintance were William, Jeremiah (my grandfather), Elisha (my father), Elijah, John, and David. Some time since my brother, Phillip C., of Nogales, Arizona, who spends much time in Mexico, sent me a letter from a Mrs. Minnie Snodgrass Hodgson, who desired information about us. She said she was the daughter of Alexander Snodgrass, a native of Wheeling, West Virginia, & son of James, who was one of the three brothers who came from Scotland to this country & settled in western Virginia. I have twice lived in Wheeling & my wife is a native of that city. Neither of us ever heard of any such family. If her grandfather came from Scotland, he is not of our relationship--or in so distant that we cannot trace relationship. Our ancestors came to this country from County Tyrone, Ireland, more than a century ago. One of the best known clergymen in all this region 30 or 40 years ago was the Rev. Dr. William D. Snodgrass of the Presbyterian Church, who was pastor of large churches in Albany, New York City, & later Goshen, New York. At the last named place he built an enormous church--erected a fine stone building & continued in service beyond his 80th year. He died before I came to this region 17 years ago, & I have never been able to trace any relationship with him. Our ancestors went early to Western Virginia. The Rev. John Wesley Snodgrass, son of William (who was familiarly distinguished from other Williams as "Red Bill" was long a minister in the Methodist Episcopal Church in West Virginia until [he] removed to Iowa many years ago. He died recently at the home of his daughter (Mrs. Mason or Morgan, I think) in Boone, Iowa, at the age of 90 or there about. His father was my grandfather's great uncle.

I am 54 years old. For more than 7 years I have been pastor of this church.

16 Jan 2014 - Tampa Bay Times (St. Petersburg, Pinellas Co., Florida) (Newspapers.com), Thursday, 16 Jan 2014:

Betty Ann Snodgrass, a resident of The Chelsea at Brookfield [Belvidere, Warren Co., New Jersey], who provided her with compassionate assisted living, passed away on Jan. 13, 2014. She was born on Dec. 23, 1927, in East Alton, Illinois, one of six children of Charles and Bertha (Smith) Edwards. Betty spent most of her life in Wood River, [Madison Co.] Illinois, where she attended high school, met her husband, Arthur Snodgrass, raised her son, Arthur Edward Snodgrass, and worked as a secretary for many years for the First Baptist Church of East Alton. She and her husband retired in the early 1980s and, with their son, moved to Amber Glades Estate Mobile Home Park in Clearwater [Pinellas Co., Florida].

After her husband's death in 1986, Betty thoroughly enjoyed working at Tampa Bay Downs Race Track, selling programs, and playing cards with her friends in Amber Glades Park. When Betty began to demonstrate significant memory loss, her only living sister at that time, Jeannine Edwards Parker, invited Betty to move to New Jersey where they could spend more time together, and where Jeannine and her husband, Raymond, could look after her long-term care. Betty will be remembered for her kind-heartedness, forgiving nature, her faith in God, and teaching her extended family the card game of "Hand and Foot."

She is survived by her son, Ed Snodgrass of Clearwater; her brother-in-law, Raymond Parker of Milford, New Jersey; several nieces and nephews; as well as grandnieces and grandnephews, who all loved her dearly.

A memorial service will be held at Sylvan Abbey Memorial Park and Funeral Home, Clearwater, in February.

12 Nov 1965 – The Miami News (Miami, Dade Co., Florida) (Newspapers.com), Friday, 12 Nov 1965:

Shelby, N.C.—Three brothers, returning from South Florida, were killed last night when their single-engine plane crashed in a cotton field shortly after takeoff from a Shelby airport. The plane had refueled yesterday at Lantana, just south of Lake Worth.

Cleveland County Coroner J. Ollie Harris said the victims were identified from papers found on their bodies as: Edward Glen Snodgrass, 36, Woodfield, Ohio; Raymond Carl Snodgrass, 39, of South Charleston, W. Va.; and Robert Clemm Snodgrass, 37, of Jacksonburg, W. Va.

Harris said Edward Glen Snodgrass, an Air Force veteran, was identified as pilot of the 4-place Stinson by employees at the Shelby airport where the plane was refueled. He said the Federal Aviation Agency ordered an autopsy performed on the pilot.

The coroner said the plane took off about 8 p.m. and crashed about five minutes later about 11 miles north of the airport.

The body of Robert Clemm Snodgrass was found in the wreckage, which did not burn. The bodies of the other two brothers were found nearby.

Harris said the brothers apparently were en route from Florida to West Virginia. He said the plane had been refueled earlier yesterday at Lantana, Fla., and Brunswick, GA.

John Miller Sparks, who lives a few miles north of Shelby, said he was outside his farm home when he first heard the plane. "It circled twice, then sputtered, and then came down," Sparks said. "It sounded like a bomb when it hit."

The aircraft fell about 100 yards from the Sparks' home.

Texas Descendants of "Old" Jacob Wagner

Jacob Wagner was born in the Palatinate area of Germany in the year 1717. He, like so many others, left his homeland to come to this new land, America. He settled first in Lebanon, Lancaster Co., Pennsylvania, before coming to Rowan Co., North Carolina. I am not sure when Jacob arrived in Rowan Co., however, he had received two land grants from the Granville Dist. by 1760, each for 360 acres. Jacob and his wife Susannah were the parents of at least six children: Daniel (I), Jacob Jr., Joseph, David, Magdalene, and Mary.

Jacob's oldest son Daniel (I) married Elizabeth Harmon in Rowan Co., on 18 Mar 1767. She was the oldest child of George and Margaret Harmon. George wrote his consent for this marriage in German. George Harmon was born in Mittelfranken, Wuerttemberg, Germany, in 1710. His parents were Johan Michael and Kundigunda Regis Hermann. George came to America with four brothers and settled in Pennsylvania for a short time. George married his wife in Maryland before coming to North Carolina. It is believed they settled in that part of Rowan Co. that was Guilford Co. in 1770 and Randolph Co. in 1779. George mentioned his son-in-law Daniel Wagner in his will. He died in Randolph Co. in 1787.

Old Jacob Wagner died on 1 Nov 1799, and is buried in the Bethany Reform Church Cemetery, Davidson Co., North Carolina. He left Daniel 800 acres of land located on Abbots Creek. It has been recorded that Daniel and his brother-in-law, Cutliff Harmon, were friends and hunting companions of Daniel Boone. Daniel took a second wife, Elizabeth Kane, daughter of Peter Kane. Peter Kane mentions his son-in-law Daniel Wagner in his will.

Daniel's son Mathias married Susan Miller. It is thought that Andrew, the second son, married Susannah Grimes. The third child, Catherine, married Valentine Harmon; Mary Amelia married Peter Clodfelter; Rosannah married John DeLapp Sr.; Sarah married John Baker; Elizabeth married Abraham Bucks; Susannah married George Sithloff; and Barbara married first a Mr. Heasley and second a Mr. Potter.

The only child born to Daniel's second wife was Daniel (II), born 2 Jul 1792. Daniel (II) married Christina Eller. Daniel (I) was in the North Carolina Militia during the Revolutionary War.

The oldest child of Andrew Wagner [& probably Susannah Grimes] was Daniel Waggoner. He married Martha Kincannon in Washington Co., Virginia. She was the daughter of Dr. Francis Kincannon II and his wife, Martha Snodgrass, daughter of David and Margaret Snodgrass of Abington, Washington Co., Virginia.

It is not known whether Andrew Wagner and his family were living in Washington Co. at the time of his son Daniel's marriage or not; however, on the 1830 census of Hardin Co., TN, it shows the families of Andrew [Wagner], Daniel [Wagner], and Francis Kincannon II living in the town of Savannah.

Daniel and Martha [Kincannon] Waggoner were the parents of seven children. Susan, the oldest child, married J. J. Williams, and died the following year giving birth to a daughter they named Susan. Daniel Waggoner's daughter Martha married her dead sister's husband, J. J. Williams.

Daniel's third child was Elizabeth "Betsy," who married Alexander Nevill; [his daughter] Margaret Ann "Peggy" married Zachariah Lilly, [his son] Mathias married Mary Graham, [his daughter] Nancy Keturah married James M. L. Porter, and [his son] Francis G. K. married Mrs. Sarah Adeline Evins. The grandchild, Susan Williams, married Dr. J. M. Motley and died during childbirth. The name Susan was never used in the family again.

Daniel Waggoner died of typhoid fever in 1835. Martha lived with her daughter Nancy Keturah Porter until she [Martha] died.

Her son-in-law, Alexander Nevill, was sheriff of Hardin Co. Then, but when his term of office was over, Alexander and Betsy became interested in exploring the new territory called Texas. Their first land grant was dated in 1841 in Red River Co., Texas. Alexander continued to be interested in city, county, and state politics. He was appointed as one of five Commissioners to establish the center of the new-formed Titus Co., and to select a townsite to be called Mount Pleasant. He was J. P. for many years, and was Chief Justice at the time of death of his son, Napoleon Bonaparte Nevill. The land surrounding these two graves was given to the church, and is known as Nevill's Chapel and Restland, located in Nevill's Community just Northeast of Mt. Pleasant, Titus Co., Texas.

Betsy and Alexander Nevill were the proud parents of eleven children: Thomas Lafayette; Napoleon Bonaparte; Margaret Ann; Mary Elizabeth; Andrew Jackson; Martha Parlee; William Francis; Sarah Patience; Julia Isabelle; Nancy Susanne; and Mathias Alexander, who was born one month before his father's death.

Betsy was left with ten children, ranging in age from 17 to 1 month. Her parents were no longer living; therefore, she called upon her strong pioneer strength of character to raise her children alone.

Betsy had two sons, T. LaFayette Nevill and Andrew Jackson Nevill, to serve in the Civil War. They were among the lucky soldiers who returned home, even though Andrew Jackson lost a limb. Betsy had a grandson, William Alpert Nevill, son of Thomas LaFayette, to serve in the Spanish American War; and a great-grandson, James Buchanan Reed, Jr., was the first World War II casualty from Mount Pleasant, Titus Co., Texas.

William Francis Nevill was not quite old enough to serve in the Civil War, but he was old enough to help his mother and older sisters with the younger children and the farm chores. He married Luvina Arilla Josephine Durham in 18972. They moved to Wolfe City, Hunt Co., Texas, where they gave their five children a good home environment and formal education. Their children were Thomas William, who married Clara Cordelia Horn; Laura Bell; Arthur; Nannette Booker; and Everett.

When Nanette's first husband died, she moved back home to help with her aging parents. William Francis Nevill celebrated his 80th birthday on 25 Jan 1925. Nannette took him to town to have his picture made and had invited all of his family and friends to come by the home place to share in the celebration. Besides the guests he received 51 cards and letters. Nannette took the time to record for future generations all the beautiful verses on the cards and the warm wishes from relatives and friends. I believe my grandfather, Thomas William Neville, expressed a most loving sentiment that all parents would like to hear from their own children! I quote:

"It is with the greatest pleasure that I congratulate you on this your eightieth birthday. Those eighty years represent the biggest part of a life well spent. In the 51 years that I have lived, there is no word or deed of yours that bears reproach, and no memory that is not pleasant. It is my hope that when I have reached the eightieth mile post, that my children can think of me and be as proud of me as yours are of you today."
