SNODGRASS AS A SURNAME. (See 9th Series, vol. 9, pages 366 & 496; vol. 10, page 71)—It does not appear to have been noticed that at Wimborne Minster, against the wall of the north aisle, near to the north-west porch, is a mural tablet to the memory of Elizabeth Snodgrass, who died at Wimborne, 9 Nov., 1836, aged sixty-four.

In the same church, against the south wall of the west tower, is a mural tablet commemorating John Bayles Wardell, eldest son of Bayles and Maria Wardell of Arne, co. Dorset, who died 15 April, 1810, aged eight.

I cannot claim that Charles Dickens took the names Snodgrass and Wardle from these tablets, for the first number of 'The Pickwick Papers,' in which we find a mention of "Augustus Snodgrass, Esq., M.P.C.," was published in March, 1836, eight months before the death of Elizabeth Snodgrass. But it is possible that he may have heard the names mentioned in connexion with Wimborne; for in his early journalistic days he was engaged at Bath, Bristol, and Marlborough. Mr. Pecksniff's home in 'Martin Chuzzlewit' was "in a little Wiltshire village, within an easy journey of the fair old town of Salisbury"; and his pupils improved themselves, for three or five years, according to their articles, "in making elevations of Salisbury Cathedral from every possible point of view." Dickens knew Salisbury and Salisbury plain well. It is possible, at any rate, that his professional duties may have led him some 25 miles further south, and that at Wimborne he may have heard the name, and adopted it as that of one of his characters. At any rate, that Snodgrass was a surname may be seen on the walls of Wimborne Minster today (cf. Hutching's 'History of Dorset,' 1868, vol. iii. p. 214).

Notes and Queries: 10th Series vol. 10, July 4, 1908, page 10:

SNODGRASS AS A SURNAME (see 10th Series, vol. 9, page 427)—It is surprising that there should have been any doubt as to Snodgrass being a real name, as people bearing it are still to be found in Glasgow, Paisley, and other parts of Scotland.

1. An account of the Snodgrass family of Cunninghamehead is given in Paterson's 'History of the Counties of Ayr and Wigtown,' iii. 209-10, which I will not repeat more than is necessary for the purpose of adding dates, &c. John, the first Snodgrass owner of Cunninghamehead, and the builder of the house there, died 20 Oct., 1771. The eldest son Neil died 6 Oct., 1821, aged 81, his wife Marian having predeceased him 13 March, 1818. The second son William died at Irvine, 2 Nov., 1824, aged 83. The youngest son John became a lieutenant in the 82nd Regiment, 19 Dec., 1778, and was drowned at sea soon afterwards.

Neil Snodgrass of Cunninghamehead had three sons and three daughters. His oldest son David took the name of Buchanan. His second son John was a major in the H.E.I.C.S. The Major's only son William James married 18 Sept., 1845, at Dalchully House, Inverness-shire, Isabella Newman, dau. of Henry Bousfield, Esq., late surgeon Bengal N.I. The Major's eldest daughter Marion Elphinstone Coates was married at St. George's, Bloomsbury, 13 Sept., 1849, to Theophilus Thompson, eldest son of Thomas Thompson, of Poundisford Park, Pitminster, Somerset. The Major's second daughter Eliza Ann died at Edinburgh unmarried, 30 Nov., 1862. Capt. James Snodgrass, Neil's third son, died at Tabriz, Persia, in October, 1814. The date of the marriage of Christina Snodgrass to Lieut.-Col. Reid was 21 July, 1806.

2. So far as I know, no account has been given of the Snodgrass family of Paisley. John Snodgrass, Sheriff-Clerk of Renfrewshire, died 24 May, 1785. Hew Snodgrass, W.S., died at Newton, near Paisley, 31 April, 1807. Neil Snodgrass, late of Paisley, died in Jamaica, 14 May, 1818. I suspect that this was the cotton manufacturer of this name who on 24 July, 1807, married at Johnstone, Agnes, e. dau. of Mr. Robert Hodgart, merchant. Hew Snodgrass of Morant Bay died at Port Royal, Jamaica, 24 Oct., 1819. Lieut. Wm. Snodgrass, late of the 24th Regiment of Foot, died at Govan, 4 Dec., 1820. John Snodgrass, W.S., died at Paisley, 7 March, 1822.

The Rev. John Snodgrass, D.D., a Presbyterian minister of Paisley, married Janet, eldest sister of General Sir Kenneth Mackenzie Douglas (a lady ignored by Burke), and died at Saltcoats, 19 June, 1797. She died at Eagleton, Williams' River, N.S.W. [New South Wales, Australia], 30 July, 1852, aged 90. Their son Kenneth is the "leader of a Portuguese regiment" mentioned at 9th Series vol. 10, page 72. There is no evidence to connect him with Gabriel Snodgrass, the shipbuilder of Chatham, or with an earlier Gabriel Snodgrass who was principal surveyor to the H.E.I.C. in the middle of the eighteenth century. Major Kenneth Snodgrass was in command of the 1st Battalion of the 13th Portuguese Regiment at the siege of San Sebastion, and was slightly wounded on 17 July, 1813, when the fortified convent of San Bartolome and an adjoining work on a steep hill were carried by assault. On 31 Aug. the town itself was taken after some very hard fighting. Sir Thomas Graham wrote:— "The advance of the 1st Batt. 13th Reg. under Major Snodgrass, over the open beach and across the river...was made in the handsomest style under a very severe fire of grape. Major Snodgrass attacked and finally carried the small breach on the right of the great one."

The Duke of Wellington also wrote:—

"All reports concur in praise of the detachment from the 10th Portuguese Brigade under Major Snodgrass, which crossed the river Urumea, and stormed the breach on the right under all the fire which could be directed on them from the castle and town."

For this he was made Lieutenant-Colonel, and given the command of the 1st Cacadores. He was slightly wounded 11 Dec., 1813, and severely wounded in attacking the heights above Orthos. He was made C.B. 4 June, 1815, and died on the Hunter River, N.S.W., 14 Oct., 1853.

His son John was born in Portugal in May, 1815. He [apparently means the father] became Major of the 96th Regiment 15 June, 1815. He [apparently means the son] married 23 Feb., 1843, at St. Luke's, Chelsea, Rachel, only dau. of his great-uncle Sir K. M. Douglas, and died at the Curragh, 27 Jan., 1856. She died 15 Jan., 1877.

Kenneth John Mackenzie Snodgrass, son of Peter Snodgrass, M.L.A. of Melbourne, was probably related to this family. He became a Winchester Commoner in the autumn of 1858. Is anything further known of him?

3. John James Snodgrass, captain 91st Foot, received the brevet ranks of major and lieutenant-colonel on 13 Nov., 1826, and 28 Dec., 1826, respectively. He became major 94th Foot, 3 Aug., 1830; lieutenant-colonel unattached, 28 June, 1833; and D.Q.M.G. to the troops in Nova Scotia and its dependences, 12 Sept., 1834. He married 3 Nov., 1823, Maria Macdonald, e. Dau. of General Sir Archibald Campbell, Bt., G.C.B. Their son Archibald Campbell Snodgrass was born at Government House, Fredericton, New Brunswick, in the spring of 1832. He became captain 38th Regiment 29 Dec., 1854, and major 17 July, 1855, having acted as A.D.C. to his uncle Major-General Sir John Campbell, Bt., at the unsuccessful attack on the Redan, 18 June, 1855. He died at Milbank, near Southampton, 26 Nov., 1863.

4. Thomas Snodgrass, Esq., F.R.S., formerly of the Madras Civil Service, died at 10 Chesterfield Street, Mayfair, 28 Aug., 1834. "The Gentleman's Magazine" records that "returning from India many years ago with a large fortune, he fitted up a house in Chesterfield-st., with extraordinary splendour, but never received company in it more than once. He has left the sum of 175,000 pounds to the daughter of a widow lady named Russell, residing in Beaumont-st., Mary-le-bone: entirely because her father was kind to him when he first went to India."

John B. Wainwright

Dickens did not require to go beyond the City of London to come across the name of Snodgrass. In the Seamen's Hospital, Greenwich, there is a clock presented to that society by a Thomas Snodgrass who was a benefactor and member of committee of the Hospital. His name is inscribed on the clock. I understand he resided in Chesterfield Street, Mayfair, and died about 1834. The Secretary of the Hospital wrote to me some time ago, asking if I could give him any information about this Thomas Snodgrass; but I could not, nor have I been able to trace any of his connexions. If any of your readers can supply me with information about him, I shall be much obliged.

I have in my possession the last will and testament of a William Snodgrass of the parish of Christchurch, London, dated 5 Feb., 1775, who appears to have had two brothers, James and John; but whether they were relations of Thomas Snodgrass or not, I do not know. I should also like to have some information about Gabriel Snodgrass, shipbuilder of Chatham, mentioned in Notes & Queries of 26 July, 1902.

The name Snodgrass has been fairly common in Renfrewshire for four hundred years, as the local records show. The Renfrewshire Poll Tax Roll of 1695 gives 36 persons of the name. An Adam Snodgrass was one of the Friars Preachers and a Baillie of Ayr in 1372.

W. G. Snodgrass
Riversdale, Kilmacolm, Renfrewshire

This name had appeared in well-known fiction some time before the publication of 'Pickwick,' for the Rev. Charles Snodgrass figures frequently in 'The Ayrshire Legatees,' published anonymously in 1821 by John Galt.

Nel Mezzo.

Perhaps this name was, or is, not so vastly uncommon. There was certainly a cadet at the R.M. Academy, Woolwich, in 1861-2, bearing that patronymic.

Exeter's Finance Clerk is Mr. Sidney Herbert Snodgrass; and a cousin of my own, resident in Brighton, bears the same surname.

SNODGRASS AS A SURNAME (see 10th Series, vol. 9, page 427; vol. 10, page 10).—Is the following tale known? There was a Collector of the name of Snodgrass in the interior of Madras Presidency, under the Company. He was rumoured to be living like a prince, and never to produce any accounts. A Special Commissioner was sent to inquire. It was found that all the accounts were kept at an old temple on an island in a lake. The Commissioner was sent to inquire. It was found that all the accounts were kept at an old temple on an island in a lake. The Commissioner rowed out to the temple with his host the Collector, and all the books were put into a barge, which straightway sank in deep water. An unfavourable report, and dismissal without pension, were the result. Mr. Snodgrass came home, sat down outside the India Office, and swept the crossing. A crowd assembled, and there was trouble. To get rid of him, he was given a pension. He instantly drove down in his four-in-hand, left a card with his compliments for the Directors, bowed, and drove away. After all this he sat on a hospital or fund committee with Dickens.

In the July Catalogue (275A) of Mr. Henry Gray (Goldsmiths' Estate, East Acton, W.), is the following:— "Snodgrass (Major J.J.), Narrative of the Burmese War, detailing the Operations of Maj.-Gen. Sir Arch. Campbell's Army, from its Landing at Rangoon in May, 1824, to 1826. Map and illustrations, 8vo, bds., uncut, 1827, 8s."

Thomas Snodgrass, Chesterfield Street, was one of the members of the East India Company, qualified with two votes at the election 11 April, 1821. I have an earlier list of the members (1805), but no one of that name appears in it.

SNODGRASS AS A SURNAME (see 10th Series, vol. 9, page 427; vol. 10, pages 10 & 52).—The story of Thomas Snodgrass of the Madras Service is partially told in Baillie's 'History of the Oriental Club,' and at greater length by Sir Charles Lawson in his 'Memories of Madras.' It has never really been substantiated by reference to the minute-books of the Directors of the East India Company. Most probably it underwent embellishment during the time it was being handed down verbally in the Club. After his retirement Mr. Snodgrass spent a considerable portion of his time in managing charities connected with the mercantile marine. His portrait hangs in the office of the marine Society in Bishopsgate Street, and is reproduced in the 'Memories of Madras.'

Frank Penny.

Snodgrass was the name of one of Beau Brummell's Butts:— "A gentleman who suffered by his pranks was a Mr. Snodgrass, I believe an F.R.S., and very fond of scientific pursuits; probably the reason [?] why he was singled out by Brummell as a fit and proper object for his fun. Accompanied by several friends, he once knocked up this philosopher at three o'clock on a fine frosty morning; and when, under the impression of his house being on fire, he protruded his body en chemise, and his head in a nightcap, from the window, the Beau put the following very interesting question to him:—'Pray, sir, is your name Snodgrass?' 'Yes, sir,' said he, very anxiously, 'my name is Snodgrass.' 'Snodgrass—Snodgrass,' repeated Brummell, 'a very odd name that, upon my soul; a very odd name indeed! But, sir, is your name really Snodgrass?' Here the philosopher, with the thermometer below freezing-point, naturally got into a towering passion, and threatened to call the watch; whereupon Brummell walked off with—'Good morning to you, Mr. Snodgrass.'"—Jease, 'The Life of George Brummell,' 1854, p. 60.

R. L. Moreton.

'The Office Window,' Daily chronicle, 5 April, 1907, contained the following:— "There is no doubt that Charles Dickens when in Bath on a reporting exploit picked up the name of Snodgrass, as he did so much else, immediately afterwards introduced into the pages of 'Pickwick,' writes a correspondent. Alexander Snodgrass was mine host of 'The Raven,' in Quiet Street, from 1826 (if not earlier) until about 1832, when he moved to 'The Caledonian' Tavern in Trim Street. There he died in May, 1853, and was laid to his rest in that famous little burial-ground on the heights of Lansdown. In the same graveyard lie Elizabeth Snodgrass, d. 1850, and Robert Snodgrass who d. 1852."

In the 1805 Army List Kenneth Snodgrass appears in the list of lieutenants of the 52nd Foot, the immediate senior being Lieut. Wm. Rowan, who (see 9th Series, vol. 10, page 72) married a sister of Mr. Spong, who is believed to have suggested the character of Wardle.

Mrs. Snodgrass (referred to ante, p. 11) and her brothers, Lynedoch and Donald Douglas, were often in this neighbourhood, their father having married a Hythe lady, Miss Rachel Andrews.

R. J. Fynmore.

In the British Museum Catalogue there are 17 entries to 12 authors of this name. The earliest is John Snodgrass, D.D., theological pamphlets published at Paisley from 1770 to 1796. The next is Gabriel Snodgrass, in a letter to the Directors of the East India Company in 1797. Then comes one with the Christian names of John James, on the Burmese War in 1827.

An American preacher, William S., comes next, 1830-40. A Scottish miller, John Snodgrass of Glasgow, follows in 1860 with a work on co-operation. John S., the translator of Heine, is next, 1879-82. Wm. Snodgrass published some medical works between 1893 and 1899; while the latest are reprints of papers, &c., in American scientific journals, 1899-1902.

SNODGRASS AS A SURNAME (10th Series, vol. 9, page 427; vol. 10, pages 10, 52, 113).—Regarding the Dickens aspect of this discussion, I can say that my father, William Snodgrass, of Bath, always told me that Dickens met my grandfather in a Bath hostelry; that my grandfather was an amateur poet, and, as is the way in inns—even nowadays—he talked a lot; that Dickens, when he went to Bath, dropped in often, and also talked a lot. Result: Dickens struck by the singularity of the name; a novelist seeking for new and striking or curious names; the res, 'Pickwick Papers.'

There was a Pickwick coach running from London to Bath at that period. There was a Weller who had livery stables at Bath. There was a Tupman whose name was over some shop in the town.

One of my brothers has a volume of poetry in MS. written by my grandfather, from which I may perhaps send you a few selections. Some are quaint old songs of the period, which, I believe, are non-existent in writing elsewhere. All these things show that Dickens discovered most of his names for 'Pickwick Papers' during a visit to Bath. But the Snodgrass family must not be judged by the standard of the Snodgrass of Pickwick's friendship.

14 Jan 1863 — The Exeter Flying Post or, Trewman's Plymouth and Cornish Advisor (Exeter, England), Wednesday, 14 Jan 1863:

Suicide.—On Friday an inquest was held at the Poltimore Arms, St. Sidwell, before Mr. H. W. Hooper, city coroner, on the body of Alexander Snodgrass, a carver, in the employ of the Messrs. Brock and Co. The deceased, who was well-known in the city, has left a wife and four young children. The deceased was in great pecuniary difficulties, and had appointed on the day of his death to meet a heavy bill, which he was quite unprepared to do. This weighed heavily on his mind. He had frequently of late complained of pains in the back of his head; and on Thursday was too unwell to attend to his work. He got up about eleven o'clock; but was obliged to go to bed again shortly afterwards. About twelve o'clock his wife took him a cup of tea to his bedroom; and on going again to see him about two hours afterwards found him suspended by a rope to an iron bar driven into the rafters of the ceiling, quite dead. This was in the children's bedroom, where deceased had passed the greater part of his Sundays lately. The jury, after hearing the evidence, returned a verdict of "Temporary insanity." The deceased was a man of great humour and facetious wit; and had recently lectured at the Exeter Working Men's Society and also at Ottery, almost throughout, by his manner and treatment of the subjects in hand, keeping the audience for two hours in continued laughter.

17 Feb 1850 — The Era (London, England), Sunday, 17 Feb 1850:

Shocking Death from Burning.—A young girl, eighteen years of age, named Caroline Flowers, servant at the Caledonian Tavern, Hereford, went to bed at half-past nine o'clock on Sunday evening. The other inmates of the house did not retire until nearly midnight. At about half-past two o'clock on the following morning, Miss Elizabeth Snodgrass, the daughter of the landlord, whose bedroom adjoined that of the servant, was roused from sleep by the screams of Flowers, and, on opening the room door, saw the unfortunate girl standing outside, enveloped in flames. The servant rushed into Miss Snodgrass's apartment, and the latter, with great presence of mind, took up the carpet, and wrapped it round Flowers, in the hope of thus extinguishing the flames. The girl, however, threw herself on the bed, and Miss Snodgrass immediately descended to her father's room, on the floor below, to give an alarm, and Mr. Snodgrass, on coming up, covered the sufferer with carpets, and succeeded in extinguishing the flames. Though every attention was afforded to her, she expired at noon on Monday. Previous to her death, she said she had fallen asleep in her chair, and did not awake for two or three hours, and that, on stooping down to unlace her boots, her clothes caught fire. These facts were corroborated by the circumstances of one of her boots being unlaced and the other laced. She had not undressed herself, for when she was removed to the Hospital, some fragments of a flannel petticoat, her stays, and carter, were discovered; but these were the only vestiges of her apparel which had escaped destruction by the flames. The body presented an awful spectacle, the features being entirely destroyed, and the nails of her fingers hanging loose from the flesh, which appeared to have been literally roasted. It was most extraordinary that, after having been so dreadfully injured, she should have lingered so many hours.

~7 May 1834 — The Morning Post (London, England), Wednesday, 7 May 1834:
 Great Meeting of the Trades' Union in Manchester.
 Monday Evening.

A Meeting of the Working Classes constituting the above body was held at noon this day, pursuant to public notice, in Granby-row-fields. The place of meeting was happily chosen for the purpose, being a space about sixty square yards, surrounded by a mound of earth about six feet high, thereby forming a sort of amphitheatre, and the hustings was placed in the centre. At about half-past twelve a man of the name of Barnard Thurnay, a pipemaker, was called to the Chair; and at that period there were probably 6,000 to 7,000 persons on the ground. ...

Wm. Snodgrass, joiner, saw by the Papers Government intended to put down Union. If the Bill passed it was their duty to do all they could to stop the Supplies, by working only eight hours a day.—(Cheers.)

Coroner's Inquests.

On the body of Thomas Snodgrass, 18 months old, son of Thomas Snodgrass, a porter, who resided in 9 Court, Penrhyn street. On Wednesday last the deceased was in the kitchen with his mother. The deceased was on the floor, closet to the table. Mrs. Snodgrass had poured out a cup of tea, and turned round to take the kettle off the fire, when she heard the child scream. She then found that the cup had been upset on the table, and its contents spilled over the deceased. Dr. Arnold was called in, but the child died on the 21st instant. Verdict, "Accidentally scalded."

11 Apr 1878 — The Guardian (London, England), Thursday, 11 Apr 1878:

The Southport Will Suit.—In the Probate Division of the High Court of Justice yesterday, the cause of Blundell v. Scrimgeour was again before His Lordship and a jury. It will be remembered that the action involved the validity or otherwise of the will of the late Mrs. Isabell Snodgrass, who was an octogenarian at the time of her demise. The will was disputed on the ground that it was not executed in accordance with the statute, that deceased had been unduly influenced, was not of sound mind, memory, and understanding, and did not know and approve of the contents.—Sir James Hannen, in summing up, pointed out that according to the medical evidence the deceased was at times sensible and at others the reverse, and he left all the issues for them to determine.—The Jury without retiring found against the last will, and Sir James Hannen pronounced against it, and allowed the defendant his costs.

11 Apr 1878 — Liverpool Mercury, etc. (Liverpool, England), Thursday, 11 Apr 1878:

The Southport Probate Suit.—In the Probate and Divorce Division of the High Court of Justice, on Wednesday, the case of Blundell v. Scrimgeour was resumed. It will be recollected it was a suit in which the testamentary dispositions of the late Isabella Snodgrass, of Hall-street, Southport, were the questions. The plaintiff propounded a will which he alleged had been legally executed by the testatrix, and by it he was largely benefitted. That will was opposed by James Scrimgeour, a nephew of the testatrix, on the ground of undue influence and other grounds. The case was part heard on Saturday, and on Wednesday it was resumed before Sir James Hannen and a common jury, at Westminster. The principal evidence offered in opposition to the will propounded was that of Mr. and Mrs. Scrimgeour, who stated the testatrix had frequently denied that she had made a will in 1873, and that if such had been done it was without her knowledge. They also stated that they had frequently called at the residence of the testatrix, but they were always refused admission to her apartments alone.—A number of other witnesses were examined, and without hearing Mr. Inderwick, who appeared for Mr. Scrimbeour, the jury returned a verdict for the defendants, and against the will of 17th May, 1877.

5 Jun 1890 — Liverpool Mercury, etc. (Liverpool, England), Thursday, 5 Jun 1890: Birkenhead Police Court. Wednesday, June 4. Before Messrs. W. Jackson and G. Atkin.

Exchange or Robbery?—An elderly man, named Alexander Snodgrass, living in Westminster-street, Liverpool, was charged with stealing a coat, a vest, and a pair of trousers, the property of Michael Brennan, 23, Warwick-street. It appeared that the prisoner, who is related by marriage to the prosecutor, asked Brennan to give him a penny, to enable him to get to Liverpool. The prosecutor sent him to his house to get the coin, and while there the prisoner stole the suit, leaving his own coat hanging behind the door. Prisoner was arrested yesterday morning by Detective Potts while leaving Walton Jail, where he had served six weeks for a similar offence. Prisoner was now sent to jail for two months, with hard labour.

The Daily Herald (Delphos, Ohio) (Ancestry), 18 Mar 1902:
Odd Short Stories. When Thomas Snodgrass, ex-collector of Ganjain, Madras, was expelled from the service of the East India Company owing to his extravagance, he applied for a pension. But the company turned a deaf ear to him. Accordingly, he arrayed himself in tattered clothes, and armed with a broom, set to work sweeping a crossing in Leadenhall street, in front of the East India house. Immediately all of London was agog with the intelligence that an old and distinguished officer of the East India Company, who had ruled over a hundred thousand people and reveled in a palace, was now reduced, in the evening of his life, to the necessity of earning his bread by sweeping the streets. The king was thunderstruck, and implored Mr. Snodgrass to take himself and his broom away. This he did, when the company gave him his pension.

The Attack on the Redan.

The following is part of a letter from a young townsman, whose very intelligent and well-written letters have several times appeared in our columns. He was, as will be seen, one of the storming party, and, as he says, "should know" what took place on the occasion:—

Camp before Sebastopol, July 16, 1855.

...I was left to see the wounded into a place of safety, and after a good deal of trouble I managed to get all sent in that I could reach; and I returned myself, bringing Captain Snodgrass (General Campbell's aide-de-camp) under my arm; I found him lying behind a stone, severely hurt; and never did I see a more grateful look than I got from him, when I told him I would try and get him under cover.

3 Apr 1773 — The Ipswich Journal (Ipswich, Suffolk, England), Saturday, 3 Apr 1773:

Tuesday the order of the day was read in the House of Commons, and Mr. Alderman Harley was desired to bring up the second report of the secret committee appointed to enquire into East India affairs. It was read, and related chiefly to the charter and surplus freight, number of ships, &c. employed by the East India company.—The persons examined by the secret committee on these heads were, Messrs. Snodgrass, Wilks, Durand, and Sir Richard Hotham. The purport of their depositions tended to prove, that building ships in docks of their own, reducing the number of ships at present employed, and altering the tonnage now allowed, would be a saving to the company of £73,904. per ann.

*16 Feb 1879 — Lloyd's Weekly Newspaper (London, England), Sunday, 16 Feb 1879:

Supposed Suicide in a Railway Tunnel.—On Friday Dr. Hardwicke opened an inquiry, at St. Pancras Coroner's court, on the body of a man, aged about 46 years, who was found dead on the Metropolitan railway, near Kings's-cross station, on Tuesday evening. Dr. Dunlop identified the body as that of Mr. J. Snodgrass, who last summer was in the insane ward for about two months, when he was removed by a gentleman living at Hackney to private lodgings at Tottenham. On Tuesday he visited Dr. Dunlop, and said it was all up with him, for he was quite destitute. He referred deceased to Mr. Taylor, the relieving officer, and he then left. When discovered on the railway, a third-class ticket was found upon him, issued at King's-cross for Tottenham. There being no evidence as to the state of the deceased's mind, the inquiry was adjourned for the attendance of friends.

The Pall Mall Gazette* (London, England), Monday, 3 Mar 1879:

Dr. Hardwicke concluded on Saturday an inquiry concerning the death of Mr. William Snodgrass of South Tottenham, whose body, with the head nearly severed from it, was found lying across the rails at the King's-cross station of the Metropolitan Railway. It was stated that the deceased was given to drinking, and had suffered from delirium tremens. A verdict of suicide while of unsound mind was returned.

The Illustrated Police News, etc.* (London, England), Saturday, 8 Mar 1879:

Dr. Hardwicke, the coroner for Central Middlesex, resumed an adjourned inquest at the St. Pancras coroner's court, on Saturday, as to the death of Mr. W. James Snodgrass, aged fifty-three, an extensive farmer, who was found dead on the Metropolitan Railway, on Tuesday, the 11th ult., having been killed by a train. Mr. Thompson, of 21, Stock Orchard-villas, Holloway, Mrs. Abrahams, and the widow all gave evidence that the deceased did not appear of unsound mind, and had never threatened to destroy himself. His life was insured to the extent of £2150. The jury, after some consideration, returned a verdict that the deceased committed suicide whilst of unsound mine.

25 Jul 1840 — The Odd Fellow (London, England), Saturday, 25 Jul 1840:
Anniversary of the Loyal Bath City Lodge.

On Tuesday, July 7th, the Loyal Bath City Lodge, No. 371, held their eleventh anniversary at the house of Mr. Alexander Snodgrass, Caledonian Tavern, Trim-street, Bath, when upwards of sixty of the brethren sat down to a real good substantial dinner, in the old English style, served up by Host Snodgrass in his usual manner of catering, which gave the greatest satisfaction to all present. ... [word for word all the speeches and toasts] ...

Toast by P. G. Stillman—‘The health of our worthy Host Snodgrass, wife, and family, with our best thanks for his exertions on all occasions.’

Brother Host Snodgrass replied as follows:—‘I rise with feelings of regret that I am so inadequate to thank you for the kind manner you have been pleased to drink the health of myself and family. You may rest assured that nothing shall be wanting on my part to cultivate that friendly and brotherly feeling with the members of this order, which I hope will at all times merit their approval and thanks. In return for your kindness (with a grateful heart), I offer my best wishes for the perfect and lasting health of yourselves and families; and as you sail through life, may the chilling blasts of adversity never overtake you, till the stream of time bears you to the harbour of peace and comfort; and permit me to say,

Your kindness present I'll in my thoughts preserve,

Your future favours study to deserve.

Many other toasts, &c., were given, and the greatest order and conviviality prevailed throughout the evening until a late hour, when the brethren returned to their respective homes, highly delighted with the amusements of the day.
